

ACD Systems Shifts to Subscription-Based Platform

VICTORIA, BC – June 7, 2016 – ACD Systems International Inc. announced the shift towards the subscription-based platform, ACDSee 365, a desktop and web application that brings together everything users need to edit, manage, share, and access their entire photo and video library in one place. ACD Systems will also continue to offer a one-time purchase with a perpetual license for the entire suite of products.

“Packed with the latest and greatest in photo editing and management software, video conversion, and sharing — not to mention the ability to organize and store in the cloud,” said Doug Vanderkerkhove, Founder and CEO of ACD Systems, “ACDSee 365 puts the most technology in your hands for the best value.”

Features

Each plan includes:

Free Upgrades – Get the latest versions for free with no hassle.

RAW Support – Up-to-date RAW support for the latest camera models.

ACDSee Web – Access your images from anywhere in the world. Set up automatic syncing to ACDSee Web from specific folders, organize hierarchically, tag, categorize, share, and much more.

SeeDrive Cloud Storage – Upload your photos, or access them from within ACDSee. Add more storage at any time.
